The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) and the Intellectual Property and High Technology Technical Amendments Act of 2002 do not apply when the reference is a U.S. patent resulting directly or indirectly from an international application filed before November 29, 2000. Therefore, the prior art date of the reference is determined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Kolluri et al.

Refer to fig. 2 of Kolluri et al. An amplifier is disclosed which includes a first stage 220 which may be read on the amplification means claimed and which amplifies signals based on a supply voltage 205 which may be read as the first power source claimed; then stage 230 may be read as the voltage conversion means claimed as it amplifies the voltage according to a supply voltage 115 which may be read as the second power source voltage claimed. Kolluri et al. indicate at col. 3, lines 1-9 that the supply 115 is of a higher voltage than the supply 205. The reference to audio is regarded as an intended use of the invention.

Claims 2-4 are allowed.

The combination of a switching amplifier with a voltage conversion stage operating from a different power supply voltage is not shown in the prior art of record.
